DETAILED ACTION

1. In response to reconsideration filed 11/10/03. Applicant's arguments have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In the remark applicant argued in substance that the prior art does not include identify section in a new rendition.

Examiner disagreed, Brown is capable of identifier both desirable portion and undesirable portion of a document (Col. 4, lines 26-41). The content of an undesirable portion is then swapped with a new content, which also required identifying, while the content of desirable portion remains intact (Col. 3, lines 54-60). Collectively, both portions are reformatting to fit with output device, e.g., class of device, i.e., computer of television set, and in accordance with user profile (Col. 3, lines 60-65). Figures 8 and 9 illustrated that the desirable, A and B is included in the document.

Regarding, reformatting content suitable for device, is inherent computer screen and TV screen are different in both structural design and electronic signaling, in order to display content on both some kind of different formatting signal is required.

2. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

3. Claims 1 and 3 have been rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Brown et al. (US. 5,887,133).

4. Claims 2 and 4 have been rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Brown et al. (US. 5,887,133).

5. The rejections are maintained and incorporated by reference.

6. Examiner noted, there are some distinction between the prior art and the claimed invention is only content of the identifier section, not all contents is being manipulated and displayed on specific class of devices, as illustrated the elements represented by numerical 1116 and 1118, in figure 11. If applicant could clarify this point and further define characteristic class device, e.g., DOCTV, etc., in the claim, then it could overcome the rejection and perhaps advanced the prosecution.

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
